“ I remember being in the livingroom with him. I had to be maybe 6 and I told my dad that I wanted to be an author when I grew up and he told me to do it. He said that I could be as famous a the woman who wrote the Harry Potter books (JK Rowling). I still write to this day because of the faith he had in me ❤️ i love you daddy.

“Ese Chequi, siempre con tus chistes y tus memorias, últimamente me contabas las que tuviste con mi hermano Jaime. La única queja que tengo de ti es que le ibas con orgullo a ese equipillo del América, hasta te escucho decirme: ¡No me simpatizas!, cada que le tiraba a tu equipillo. ¡Descansa en paz! tío Choquichis, como te diría tú sobrino

“I will always remember running over to Nana's house when we were in pre-K and playing with their bunnies and sand box. Mr. Barrón always welcomed me into their home. Gave me food and made sure we had lots of fun! Thank you for bringing my best friend sr. I will take care of her ❤️

“I'll cherish those moments you would sing my gordis theme song whenever I was with you. I am so happy I was able to share the song I made for your beloved nieta, Lina. One thing I will miss most of all is the way you greeted me whenever you called, "¿¿Quieeeeeeen habla?!" And "¿Que está haciendo mi goooordis?". Te quiero muchísimo, and I'll miss you so much. I'll keep your memory alive by talking to Lina about her abuelito, and how much you loved her.
