“ I went to Hubbard High School with Frank, and, although he probably wouldn't remember me (we had only one class together, but after that, I would see him regularly around school...), I do remember him being virtually always friendly, happy, and upbeat, which, not many students shared those good qualities. He said he was going to barber school at night, so, when he graduated from Hubbard, he would be able to start cutting hair right away...very industrious! I'm so sorry to read of his passing...and at such a young age...he seemed to be a very nice and outgoing person...very sad news.

“ As a friend of Frank's since our days together at Hubbard High School, I was deeply saddened at the tragic news I read of Frank's unfortunate passing, as was announced in today's Sun-Times. Frank was endowed with such gifted charm, enormous humor and unmatched charisma that was infectious, which brought him close to all of those around him. I am sure that he will be truly missed by many of his friends, family and neighbors, along with those that may have had a chance encounter to meet him only briefly. Oh, by the way, Frank was such a talented Barber!

One of my fond memories is participating with Frank in a Rock 'n Roll band practicing various rock songs, such as the song "I Can See For Miles," written and played by the English rock group, "The Who," where Frank was the Lead Singer, while I played the Lead Guitar. This gentleman had such an awesome zest for life, which in turn had the incredible effect to make everyone feel good being around hm.

One of Frank's most widely utilized past-tense verbs in his younger days was "rooked," Well, my dear friend, all of us who have been blessed by your presence on this earth have now been "rooked" by your sudden passing. In closing, may God Bless Your Soul and may you rest in peace.

Your friend,

Jim Norris

“ Frank was a light in our lives. He was always ready with a story, a laugh or a helping hand. He loved life and he loved people. The kindnesses he showed to my family can never be repaid, nor will they ever be forgotten. We love him, and will go on loving him. Though none of our lives will ever be as bright without him.
