“ I never really got to know him (because I was just a baby when he passed,) but I still feel like I was missing out on something very very special. fly high uncle Tommy, and give God a good laugh while you're at it.

Good Saint Dymphna, great wonder-worker in every affliction of mind and body, I humbly implore your powerful intercession with Jesus through Mary, the Health of the Sick, in my present need. (Mention it.) Saint Dymphna, martyr of purity, patroness of those who suffer with nervous and mental afflictions, beloved child of Jesus and Mary, pray to Them for me and obtain my request.

“ My dear friend, you would have been 42 today. I miss you profoundly and remember you with love. I am forever grateful for the time we spent together at Oxford, you made it brighter and memorable. I know your soul is traveling through the universe, and we will meet again and travel together. I love you forever.

“ I have faint memories of when they brought you home from the hospital. Grandma hung new curtains and baked chocolate chip cookies. I remember being 3 and holding you on the shed in front of me while dad tied the dog to it and told us to yell “Mush!!!!” I remember you being me to leave with you and abandon my wedding at the church, go to Mexico before it was too late and how you cried the rest of the day because you lost your best friend. I remember the phone call from dad telling me you were gone and to get mom and Colleen. I coordinated everybody and I was strong. For years. It’s been 8.5 years since you left me. It hurts more now than that day. You were my true love, my soul mate. My psychic twin.
All I can say is.... Someday. Someday.

“ I wonder why you had to leave when I was so young. Or maybe I should wonder why I was so young. Though, we aren’t at fault, either of us, anyway. Right? That doesn’t mean I don’t wish you could have stayed longer. I feel like we could have gotten along. I feel like we could have been friends. I had never considered that when someone died, they’re truly gone. But I will never brush it off like that, not even in 2021. Your memory will always be here, with us, as long as we live and as long as we stand here. I’ll live on for your memory, okay?
Rest well, Uncle Tommy. Until next time,
Your Niece.

“ I had the pleasure to know Tommy as a kid when he would visit Carlee's house with Maggie. I will never forget his humor or his silly antics. I send my love, prayers, and condolences to all Tommy's family and friends, especially to his nieces and nephew. I hope they will use the memories of their uncle to keep his spirit alive.
